Who are the Pentecostals?

Pentecostalism is a fast growing, diverse and complex movement within Christianity that places special emphasis on a direct personal experience of God through the baptism in the Holy Spirit. Charismatics and Pentecostals make up nearly a quarter of the world's two billion Christians. It is theologically and historically close to the charismatic movement. The term Pentecostal is derived from Pentecost, the Greek name for the Jewish Feast of Weeks when the Holy Spirit descended on the apostles. Pentecostals have an end-of-the world focus, and claims to experience Holy Spirit through community prayers, loud singing and by the use of the gifts of tongues and prophecy. Their main beliefs are that Jesus saves according to John 3:16, baptizes with the Holy Spirit according to Acts 2:4, heals bodily according to James 5:15, and is coming again to receive those who are saved according to 1 Thessalonians 4:16-17. Pentecostals are evangelical, emphasizing the inerrancy and reliability of the Bible and the need for the transformation of an individual's life through faith in Jesus. The central belief of Pentecostalism is that through the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus Christ; sins can be forgiven and humanity reconciled with God. This is the Gospel or "good news." The fundamental requirement of Pentecostalism is that one should be born again. The new birth is received by the grace of God through faith in Christ and acceptance of him as personal Lord and Savior. By being born again, the believer is regenerated, justified, adopted into the family of God, and sanctified. Pentecostals don't believe in priesthood, sacraments or any central teaching authority. It explains the presence of numerous denominations among the Pentecostals. There is no single central organization or church that directs the movement, although some Pentecostal denominations are affiliated with the Pentecostal World Conference.

As we continue through this month of remembrance, we will once again sing “Peace Be With Those” during the offertory. November is the month when Catholics focus on loved ones who have died. We remember our departed family and friends with this prayer: Eternal rest grant unto them, O Lord. And let perpetual light shine upon them. May their souls and the souls of all the faithful departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace. Amen.
